

I want to play with other children

At break time I see other children playing.

I can go over slowly and watch
the game for a bit.

Watching helps me learn what it is about and how to play.

When I know what it is about, I can ask to join in.

I can ask to join and wait for the answer.

Asking during a break in the game
usually works better.

Sometimes they say yes and I start playing.

I can ask about the rules if I do not know them.

Asking is fine: it helps me play better.

Other times they say no, or that they have already started.

I can look for another game or ask another group.

A no this time does not mean no
on another day.

The next day I can try again.
I can play with whoever I feel like,
or on my own if I prefer.
Playing with others is something I learn little by little.

I want to play with other children
